FROM GEORGE'S WEEKLY.

The following is part of an article reproduced from George's Weekly, published at Denver, Colo. It certainly contains some unjust assertions and some uncalled for accusations:

"Last winter the medical profession of Florida concocted a conspiracy to break up Helen Wilman's in her mental healing business. They went before the Legislature with a bill making it a crime for anyone to attempt to heal without first undergoing an examination before the state medical board and securing a 'permit to practice medicine.' The bill was ignominiously defeated, because it was shown that she did not 'practice medicine.' Her persecutors didn't stop with an attempt to destroy her through state legislation. As soon as they failed in that they went after her through the United States post office department, and succeeded in having her arrested. The case will be brought to trial some time in December. A brief history of the case may be summed up as follows:

"The medical profession are bound and determined to drive her out of Florida, as they seem bound and determined everywhere to destroy everyone who does not belong to some recognized medical school. In addition to this Helen Wilman is opposed by a powerful political ring in that state, backed up by a disgruntled old millionaire, who is quietly furnishing the money necessary to prosecute her, simply because she is making a great success of City Beautiful.

"The secret of the present prosecution may be told in a few words. A very wealthy old New England manufacturer favored a little town called Seabreeze. Helen Wilman and her husband, Col. C. C. Post, bought a tract of land immediately north of Seabreeze some eight or ten years ago, and started in the wilderness to build up a city of their own. They succeeded so well that to-day the old original town of Seabreeze looks like a daub of yellow paint on a circus tent when compared with the diamond like brilliancy of City Beautiful, with its grand palm-lined avenues, beautiful hotels, piers, bridges, electric light plants, comfortable homes, and all that sort of thing.

"The old millionaire, with one foot in the grave and the other on a banana peel, imagines that it is his duty to destroy the Wilmanites because the post office department saw fit to remove the little pinkadoodle post office from Seabreeze to the adjoining city built up by Helen Wilman and her husband.

"The moving of that post office simply broke the old millionaire's heart, and he is now engaged in the very questionable enterprise of subsidizing newspapers, buying Legislators, heeling politicians and hiring detectives to hound the Wilmanite colony."

TAX SALE CERTIFICATES.

Few have understood fully about the matter, so prominently before the people of the State at the present time, of tax sale certificates. That the matter was an important one nobody doubted, but that it was such an important one and one of such immense extent, few, probably, really imagined.

Heretofore it has been customary for the State to handle each deed or certificate of land that was sold or transferred to the State for non-payment of taxes, and a complete record of such transactions kept, not in the county itself, where they properly belonged, but at the State's capital itself. It was owing to the inconvenience thus made to nearly everybody transacting real estate business not to say to individual parties also, that the matter was first agitated of

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY PASSES AWAY.

Died During the Night. How the News Was Received Here.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE-NEWS.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 14—President M'Kinley died last night shortly after twelve.

Many were the expressions of regret and sorrow that were made by the people of Daytona on receipt of the sad intelligence. The news was received at Daytona about five o'clock this morning, shortly after the telegraph office opened. The report that the President was dead was circulated several times last evening, only to be contradicted a few minutes later in each instance. In fact of the reported low condition of the President yesterday the news of his death was hourly expected and when it did arrive it was no great surprise. The flag on the Club House was immediately placed at half-mast and later many other flags about the city were placed in like position. Memorial services will be held in most of the churches tomorrow.
